THE HERALD IN 1914.

Leaders of The Evening Herald, the local public generally will readily interested in the announcement that the stockholders of this paper, because of their enthusiasm, believe that Albuquerque is entering upon a period of unprecedented prosperity, have voted to extend in every practical way the Herald's possibilities as a medium of public publicity in this community. This action on the part of the stockholders is all the more significant because it has been taken by men who know Albuquerque—men who have won personal success only because of an unswerving faith in the future of this city, and who would not be apt to extend their investments unless they positively saw the business outlook to be distinctly favorable.

In so far as the policy of The Evening Herald is concerned, Saturday's action by the stockholders and directors means simply that this newspaper will be enabled to pursue with vigor and effectiveness a course which has already won to a towering degree the approval of this community. The Herald will continue to present, in crisp, readable form, all the news on the day it is written. The Herald will continue to give valuable assistance to every movement looking toward the advancement of this city and state; the Herald will continue to afford advertisers the most effective means of reaching prospective customers in this field; and The Herald will also continue to attack vigorously—without regard to any political, personal or business interest—every movement which may seem to the management to be in the best interests of a majority of the people. In addition to all this, The Herald management has arranged for the introduction, from time to time during the ensuing year, of some new and unusually attractive special features and departments which will add greatly to the popularity of this publication as "the home newspaper"—the paper that is delivered in Albuquerque homes at the time of day when members of the average household have opportunity to read at leisure and enjoy.

HALL THE TAXPAYER BE THE GOAT?

In the county of Bernalillo the county officials have not yet finished the tax rolls and are not yet ready to issue the receipt of taxes.

If you go to the court house and try to pay your taxes, you are told that you will have to wait awhile. Large numbers of people during the latter part of November, acting on the suggestion of the attorney general of the state, went to the court house and offered to pay their taxes. They were told they would have to wait, and having shown their readiness to pay, were told that no county would be taxed against them.

They paid as soon as the tax rolls were ready.

The traveling auditor a few days ago gave out the statement that it didn't make any difference what had been promised the taxpayer or whether the rolls were ready or not; the taxpayer would have to pay the county just the same.

The Herald has already called attention to the fact that there appears to be a slight hiatus here.

Verifying up the statements of the various state officials we find that: You are not allowed to pay your taxes.

If you don't pay them you will be seized.

We believe it is only fair to ask more light on the situation.

We therefore request that someone in authority tell us which state official is qualified to give us our orders.

It is just a little too much to present the taxpayer from obeying the law and then punish him for not doing so.

saturn, not to mention Foster and Staver, chief lieutenant of Carranza, head of the constitutionalists, has broken into the British consulate and violated the right of sanctuary by holding violently therefrom the son of the richest man in Mexico. He has told other consuls in Chihuahua City in effect that unless they come through with substantial tribute he will pull the consulate down about their ears and exposing to the German consul regret that it is not convenient to shoot him, threatens to send him packing to the border.

The alternative between Huerta and Villa is to say the least a puzzling one and might well tax the patient watchfulness of the administration to the utmost. Huerta is a murderer and Villa is a homicider; the former is at the head of a government founded on violence and the latter is helping his chief found a government on still more violent violence.

However, we should not put anything past the patience of the administration. It may be expected to remain unruffled even if Villa lines the consuls up before an adobe wall and has them shot.

The only question in our mind is, whether the patience of Germany, Britain and other nations will last as long as that of Washington.

DOUBLE DUTY.

An English sportsman—they call a man a sportsman in England when he has money and nothing to do—has his upon a very clever idea. He owns an automobile and a yacht. When he wants to use his yacht he runs the automobile aboard and harnesses it to the propeller. Then he tips off the self starter, the auto gets busy, the propeller churns the water, and the plain yacht becomes a fast motor boat.

When the sportsman gets where he wants to go he ties up the yacht, runs the auto ashore and easily whizzes along the good roads.

Of course to be perfectly fair about it the sportsman should take the yacht aboard the auto when he is on land, but up to the present time he has shown no willingness to display any such form of altruism.

He's got a good idea, however. Pampered autos have too long been permitted to go aboard as stowaways—it's high time they were compelled to work their passage.

MRS. PANKHURST.

Mrs. Pankhurst's health runs up and down as easily as a monkey on a pole. A few days ago she was released from an English prison following a hunger strike. At the time it was said that she was very ill, and a fatal outcome was feared. Now she is in the giddy capital of the French, paying a social visit to her daughter, Christabel.

Mrs. Pankhurst has become an English institution. She is the best copy-maker that the reporters have discovered in a long time. The railway guards and the dock laborers may go on strike, but then they go back to work again; Lloyd-George may promulgate some new panacea for society's numerous ailments, but his schemes die away; Sir Edward Carson may preach civil war, but in time his fustian fades rather than excite the rural organs; Queen Mary may fire a pretty laudress or cut King George's cigar allowance still shorter, but the public tires.

But as to Mrs. Pankhurst—she could make Tennyson's brook jodel it was getting ready to quit singing.

GALLIARD.

The death of Lieutenant Colonel Galliard at Johns Hopkins hospital brought to an end one of nature's cruel tragedies. For over six years he had devoted all his strength, energy and talents to the rigorous labor of digging the Chileans out. When the work was practically completed and the water was about to be let into the Panama canal, at the hour of his final triumph, he was ordered home a sick and broken man.

He had succumbed to the long siege of overwork, nervous strain and the tropical climate. For the last two months of his life, while the news of the successful flooding of the waterway and the passage of the first boats through the high-level locks was being greeted with applause by millions of his countrymen, the army engineer who had perched the backbone of the continent, and whose name deserves to be linked with those of Goethals and Gorgas as the conquerors of the isthmus, was fated to lie in a state of unconsciousness in a hospital bed.

"No soldier," says the New York World, "ever gave up his life to duty on the field of battle more truly than did Galliard, the modest, tireless, efficient engineer."

DONA ANA COUNTY SETS EXAMPLE FOR STATE

State Engineer French Enthusiastic Over Model Boulevard from Las Cruces to El Paso.

TWO YEARS WILL SEE CAMINO REAL COMPLETE

Most Difficult Portion of North and South Highway Found in Northern Socorro County.

State Engineer J. A. French who was in Albuquerque Saturday night for a few hours, has completed during the past two weeks an inspection of practically all road work in this state and returns to his headquarters at Santa Fe very much encouraged with the whole good roads program of the state highway commission.

"When it is considered that we are opening practically virgin territory when our meager funds are revealed; when one remembers that good roads education must be spread in every community before anything in the way of systematic assistance can be expected, the road construction situation in this state is mighty good," said Mr. French.

"Personally, I am much encouraged over the whole situation. I have covered all of the southern part of the state and the progress being made in that section is remarkable. The finest example of road building we have in the south is in the splendid forty-mile highway which Dona Ana county is building from Las Cruces to the Texas state line, connecting with the El Paso boulevard and forming the southern end of the Camino Real. This road for which Dona Ana county people banded themselves for $100,000 is one of the best examples of modern road construction I have ever seen. The road is being laid on a heavy rock base, with an overlay of crushed stone, which is covered with reasonably fine gravel. This is mixed in with and coated with adobe, making a pavement, literally, which when put under the steam roller is fully the equal of asphalt. It is one of the finest paving materials I know of and the road is a credit to the state."

"It is to be regretted that we cannot make the whole of the Camino Real the equal of this piece of highway. But we are doing the best we can and are making fair progress."

"I believe I am safe in predicting that the New Mexico north and south highway will be completed within two years. Dona Ana county will have north to a connection with El Paso from the south end of Valencia county through Socorro county. The stretch from Santa Fe north is going to be our most difficult work. It is a fairly level country, short of material of all kinds and will be difficult and expensive. But Socorro county will have considerable money to expend on the road and we believe two years will see the connection made. Valencia county has its work well under way and with the connection you must have here in the middle of the road to Socorro, the Santa Fe highway is practically complete. The North Fourth street work on Camino Real is now well under way."

The highway commission for road construction is still before the courts, but we hope for a quick decision in the matter very soon. In the event the determination of the courts is favorable the commission of public lands will have close to $200,000 which may be invested in these state road bonds, giving us a considerable sum of money for immediate work. Work on the Camino Real however will proceed whatever the result of the bond matter.

"We are very much encouraged by the hearty support being given us throughout the state and the rapidly growing interest in road building. The people of the whole state have waked up to the necessity of better highways. It is no longer a sporadic burst of enthusiasm here and there but a general determination to get down to work which means results."

Edwin H. Blashfield, who ranks among the foremost of American artists, was born in New York city, December 15, 1845. At twenty years of age he went to Paris, where he studied under the direction of Gerome, Chappin, Leon Bonnat and other eminent French artists. After exhibiting for several years at the Paris salon and the Royal academy in London, Mr. Blashfield returned to America in 1871. Probably his best known paintings are "Christmas Bells" and "Angel With the Flaming Sword." Some of his best decorative work is to be seen in the state capitals of Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and South Dakota. In the central dome of the Library of Congress at Washington and in the great hall of the college of the City of New York.
